

ABSTRACT

A technique is provided to three-dimensionally mount different types of packages with stability. According to the technique, projections are contacted to a semiconductor chip and bumps are bonded to lands disposed on a first carrier substrate so that an end of each other carrier substrate is held right above the semiconductor chip and the other carrier substrates are independently mounted above the first carrier substrate.